

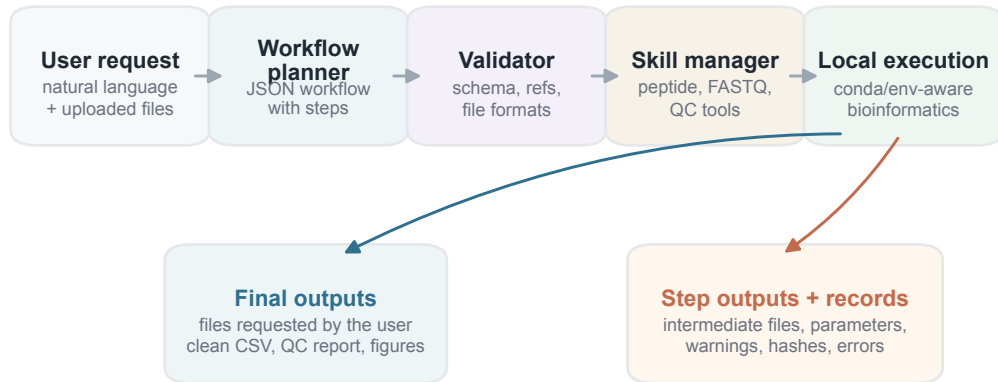

Figure 1 | Natural-language Research Agent architecture

The system converts user intent into validated local workflows with separated final outputs and audit records.

Design principle

Strict workflow validation reduces model hallucination, while local execution keeps data and environment decisions auditable.